

IPM to host open day on Saturday

Rui Pastorin

The Macau Polytechnic Institute (IPM) announced in a statement yesterday that it will host its Open Day 2022, as well as a scholarship award ceremony, on Saturday.

The statement noted that the event will feature “thematic exhibitions, campus tours, workshops, performances, and experiential activities”. The event will also include presentations about degree programmes and provide consultations for further studies, and welcomes interested parties, secondary school graduates and parents to attend the event.

Moreover, the event will also include a lucky draw, as well as on-site applications for degree programmes.

The statement pointed out that the degree programmes open for applications include “Business and Management, Information Technology, Languages and Translation, Arts, Public Management, Health Sciences, and Sports”. Undergraduate admissions for 2022/2023 are accepted until January 19 while applications for postgraduate admissions are accepted until February 28. More information can be found by visiting ipm.mo/admission.

Further information about the event can be found by visiting ipm.mo/openday, IPM’s Facebook page, or the official WeChat: ipmadmission.

Following the COVID-19 pandemic prevention measures, participants must wear a facemask, undergo temperature checks, and present a valid Macau Health Code. ■
